Easy Read Guide

We are looking for an artist or group of artists to create a new computer game about the environment

In particular, we'd like artists to be inspired by two games from the 1980s and 90's called Daisyworld and SimEarth

These games helped explain a theory called Gaia, which says that all things on earth have to be in balance to survive

We want artists to send us their ideas, which can be for any kind of digital game

We'll choose the idea we think is best and help the artist or group to make the game and show it in an exhibition in our gallery and online

£4000

We can provide a fee of £4000 to help the artist we choose make the game

It's open to artists who live anywhere, with any background

We particularly encourage ideas from artists who are usually under-represented in the arts

You can send us your idea by filling out this form

You need to send us your idea before midnight on Sunday 28 March

We'll then get back to you by Monday 5 April

You can find lots of things to inspire your ideas on this webpage
